Ch-Ch-Ch-Chia!

More than just a hairdo for your favorite '80s ceramic figurine BY VANESSA SALVIA

Eugene chef Beverly Lynn Bennett is on a roll — specifically, a gluten-free, dairy-free roll sprinkled with chia seeds enclosing a veggie burger made with chia seeds, alongside a salad made of chia seed dressing and chia sprouts. Bennett's new cookbook is called Chia: Using the Ancient Superfood, and it's all about this member of the mint family.

Since 2005, Bennett has published eight books, including four for the "Complete Idiot's Guide" series. A second edition of her first book, The Complete Idiot's Guide to Vegan Living, was published in 2012. "The book offers kept coming," Bennett says. She has written about vegan cooking, gluten-free vegan cooking and vegan slow cooking. Her latest book is a bit of a departure. It's not only the smallest cookbook she's ever done, it's also the first with color photos.

Bennett has been vegan for 26 years. She writes a monthly dairy-free dessert column for VegNews magazine, and one of those columns contained her recipe for chia pudding. A publishing company, Books Alive, wrote to her and asked if she would write a chia seed cookbook.

"I eat chia every day," she says, "so I said yes. I love chia!" Books Alive is based out of The Farm, an intentional community since 1971 in Summertown, Tenn. Besides publishing vegetarian and vegan cookbooks and health and wellness books, The Farm is known for having the most comprehensive study of vegan children and birth rates.

Bennett began experimenting with chia while developing recipes for her vegan slow-cooker cookbook. "I started thinking about using it more in savory recipes because it thickens things," she says. "So I said let's try it in dressings or making gravies. I'm always thinking of things for people with allergies and no one seems to have a problem with chia."

Chia is called an "ancient superfood" because evidence indicates that Aztecs and Mayans cultivated chia as early as 3500 BC. Bennett writes in her book that the name of the Mexican state Chiapas is derived from the word chiapan, meaning "river of chia." Chia was consumed as food, as medicine and crushed into oil for use in making body paints.

Today, we eat chia seeds because they are nutrient-packed tiny parcels with the healthy bran, germ and endosperm still intact. Chia seeds are one of the best plant sources of omega-3s, an essential fatty acid. When chia seeds get wet they swell and become slightly sticky, so they can be used as a thickener in lots of vegan recipes.

Bennett's recipes toss chia into everything from smoothies to soups, casseroles and morning muffins. The simple chia seed gel (just chia and water) adds a punch of nutrition to anything it's added to. Seed-crusted tofu cutlets are marinated and rolled in a blend of chia, sesame and hemp seeds and then baked. Served alongside a creamy roasted tomato soup topped with a sunflower and chia seed cream, it's a pretty tasty vegan meal. Because chia is so tiny, it lends itself to being added to other things or as the star of the dish, for any meal of the day.

"I think everybody should try chia seeds," Bennett says. "It's one of those things that doesn't do you any harm, so why not add it to your diet? It fills you up quickly and gives you lots of energy." ■

The Baker and the Butcher

Fun-loving couple brings simple Italian to Fifth Street Market BY CAROLINA REID

Baker Butcher, the newest addition to the international cafés at Fifth Street Market, is rustic-chic and simple. There's a chalkboard menu, Mason jar chandeliers and colorful wallboards. The kitchen sits in front of your eyes, and the periodic dull horn from the nearby train over the muted chatter of eaters creates an energetic hum that sets a perfect brunchy atmosphere.

It might seem like just Italian fare with lots of “-otto,” “-iti” and “-atta” foods on the menu, but co-owner Scott Garrett says the quiche is one of the best sellers. And on weekends, his wife and co-owner Nicole Garrett makes cinnamon rolls that have been known to sell out in 20 minutes. Sometimes she even adds prosciutto.

The Caesar salad is crisp, with a tangy sweet dressing and authentic Italian cheese, and the bistecca and peppers sandwich offers a savory delight. The butcher's block features a smattering of bite-sized cheese and charcuterie, and even the kids' menu, reasonably priced at $5 a meal, includes the true classics for the munchkins' appetites.

Beyond the menu, this couple's story is what brings the authentic Italian-family vibe to Baker Butcher. After a car accident in Mexico put her brother, Deputy Drew Wattier, and his wife Michelle Wattier in critical condition in December 2012, Nicole Garrett knew she wanted to be near her family. They moved to Eugene, where she had grown up, from Los Angeles where they had worked in other people's restaurants for several years. Both were working full time as they were putting the restaurant together, but every detail of the décor is well planned and holds a story about family.

“We'd have work parties with pizza and beer and 30 people would show up,” Nicole Garrett says.

Scott Garrett recalls that beyond friends and family, most restaurateurs in the area were more than welcoming when they first arrived. He spent time meeting with owners and getting a feel for the community.

At Baker Butcher, this close-knit community is apparent: The two $20 bills framed over the bar were Nicole Garrett's brother's best friend's nudge of encouragement to start their dream, and her brother and sister-in-law's initials are etched into the boards behind the bar.

The couple met while learning the tricks of the trade at The Broadmoor's culinary apprenticeship in Colorado Springs, a five-star hotel with a three-year, 6,000-hour program. Scott identifies himself as the butcher, while Nicole is the baker.

Just three days after they opened in October 2013, the couple found out Nicole Garrett was pregnant. They say that being life partners as well as business partners isn't a problem, though, since they both have so much experience in the field.

“But when he's cooking in the kitchen, he's not my husband,” Nicole says. “He's an animal.”

Baker Butcher is hosting a beer lunch on June 4 at Claim 52, 1030 Tyinn St., and caters regularly. For more details or registration for the lunch, call 541-686-9199. ■

CAROLINA PLOWMAN AND AMY GREEN

A Smooth Operation

The Green Plow Juicery serves up fresh, organic juices and smoothies BY SHANNON FINNELL

When getting a daily dose of fruits and veggies becomes a chore, a visit to The Green Plow Juicery can wipe out that to-do list in one delicious fell swoop. The juicery, set up in a 17-foot trailer across from Friendly Street Market, specializes in fresh juices and smoothies made to order from organic ingredients.

Amy Green, who owns the business with her husband Jason Green and their friends Carolina and Shaun Plowman, says the juicery came about as an idea on a 2006 trip to see family in the South. "Visiting juice bars was the inspiration, and we planted that seed a long time ago," she says. "Just last year in January, we felt like there was a change coming in general."

After they shared their juicery idea with the Plowmans, Green says everything started to fall into place. "Carolina's family owns restaurants internationally, so she's got that in her blood," Green says. "Her family brings a lot of knowledge and wisdom to us around restaurant operations and logistics. Shaun has done a lot of work in community building."

And the Greens bring their own experience to the mix. Between their travels in 2006 and opening the juicery, they farmed in Lorane, which Amy Green says was valuable in starting a food business. "We were already into organic and local and supporting the local farms, but we really wanted to get that experience of doing it ourselves," she says.

That healthy and local emphasis extends to Green Plow, where everything is organic, and the owners use Willamette Valley produce when it's available. Green says that when carrots come into season, they'll add a green juice with carrots to the menu due to popular demand. They also serve a soup of the day.

While the green juices rank among the customer favorites, Green has a harder time naming her own top smoothie. Some of her favorites are the seasonal Berry Cherrylicious and the dessert-like, cacao-flavored Smoothie of the Gods, as well as the Green Lunch, a regular menu smoothie with avocado, almond butter, coconut milk, mango and pineapple.

Owning a new food business isn't without its challenges, smooth as Green says it's been. Sometimes, due to other jobs and kids and life, she says, it can be hard to gather all four owners in one room to discuss business practices.

Earlier this year, a pineapple shortage forced Green Plow to reconfigure some of its recipes, another challenge. Green says that although pineapples are now back in, the shortage was a learning experience. "It keeps us in tune with our food source," she says. "These oranges and lemons and avocados come from far away. It's not like kale."

Despite the typical challenges of starting a food business, Green says that Green Plow has developed quite the community, and she reinforces that by greeting many of her customers by name. Dishing up healthy, healing recipes makes her feel a sense of purpose. "Quite honestly I knew this was where I wanted to be," she says of the location and business. "Thankfully, I love being here, and I love making these juices." ■

The Green Plow Juicery is open 8 am to 5 pm Monday through Friday and 10 am to 5 pm Sunday at 2760 Friendly St., wkly.ws/1po.

MEAT IN TUBE FORM, FROM THE ROOTER TO THE TOOTER, EUGENE'S GOT IT. HERE ARE SOME CHOICE PIMP STEAKS.

BY SARAH DECKER

With summer threatening to emerge in bursts of sunlight, one's mind wanders to warm-weather cuisine: watermelon, lemonade and wieners fresh from the grill. If you're like me, it's hard to wait for the rain to stop before satisfying that craving. So I hit the pavement in search of hot dogs. The following is what I found.

1 Bob's Weiner Stand 685 River Rd. When I think hot dogs, the cuisine they sling from Bob's Weiner Stand is precisely what comes to mind, meaning your standard Polish dog on a plush bun. Toppings range from golden American standards (yellow mustard, sweet relish, onion) on through the vast (nacho cheese, pickle spears and more). It's out of the way, but the picnic area set up to the side is the perfect spot to get away from downtown and enjoy a great lunch at a friendly price.

2 Red Five Hot Dog Co. 591 Willamette St. This is the epitome of the walk-up hot dog cart. In my travels, it is the only one of its kind I came across. The hot dogs are basic in the best way, and above that Red Five offers more than 20 different toppings. Make it your favorite standard or load up your wildest creation. This might be the spot for an afternoon stroll on lunch break. Grab a dog, keep on walking and enjoy those moments of sunshine.

3 Barry's Espresso, Bakery & Deli 2805 Oak St. & 804 E. 12th Ave. Ordering the kosher dog at Barry's takes a brave — and hungry — soul. Toppings are limited to the basics, but you don't feel cheated. Southtowne Shops make for the perfect lunch spot if you find yourself in South Eugene, just off the main drag with a nice patio for soaking up the sun.

4 McMenamins High Street 1243 High St. McMenamins takes the sausage game to a whole new level, serving up Olympic Provisions kielbasa topped with a sauerkraut relish. This is sausage the way sausage was meant to be consumed, paired nicely with a pickled garnish and accompanied by McMenamins' own stoneground mustard. The price is a little higher, but the homey environment and especially tasty food make it well worth the couple extra blocks to High Street.

5 Hot Mama's Wings 420 W. 13th Ave. Hot Mama's might be known for their wings, but they can bring it with other foods as well. The pretzel dog is a perfect example. Less traditional, this hot dog comes piping hot on a pretzel bun and topped with bacon bits and a signature beer cheese sauce. This is the perfect dog to pair with a local brew.

6 The Barn Light 924 Willamette St. The Von Trimble Beer Brat at The Barn Light closes out our tour of meats in tube form. This is an absolute ideal marriage of flavors: a Rainier beer bratwurst topped with a cider-braised cabbage. And if I ever wondered what the point of a pretzel bun is, this is it. Everything works, and the corner of Broadway and Willamette has become a favorite lunch spot, especially as the weather warms up and dries out.

No Pesky Protein

Making it easy to fill a Gluten Free Cart BY SHANNON FINNELL

Bread isn't just bread for those who can't tolerate gluten — it's a gut-wrenching problem food. And pasta? Forget it. About one in 141 people have celiac disease, according to the National Institutes of Health, and it causes an immune response when people eat gluten, a common protein in wheat, rye and barley. Another condition, gluten sensitivity, makes gluten a no-go as well.

Twila Massey, owner of the Gluten Free Cart, says that when she had to stop eating gluten, cooking anything that wasn't a whole food was difficult. "My challenges were trying to get gluten-free so it wasn't like cardboard," she jokes. "When you get away from whole foods, baked goods are probably the hardest to find that are tasty and last and have any kind of a shelf life."

Now she stocks a bevy of gluten-free products at the Gluten Free Cart, located downtown in a space shared with Alpine Catering and Pi Pizzeria. "The name stems from a grocery cart because I have baked goods, pastas, baking mixes, chips, hot sauces, soup mixes," Massey says. "Hopefully I'm going to grow to a good enough variety where somebody can come in and pick up stuff for a whole dinner and know that what they're picking is gluten-free."

In addition to ready-to-cook products, Massey offers baked goods like French bread and hand pies. She says the hand pies, available in apple, cherry, lemon and blueberry, are among her most popular items, and they can be pre-ordered as whole pies, as well. "It was a challenge finding a pie crust that I liked that's gluten-free. I've had a couple different recipes and I've finally gotten this one to where I like it," she says. "It's a cream cheese pie crust that's great to work with. It cooks wonderfully, and I've been really happy with it."

The Gluten Free Cart was part of the Eugenius Market in Springfield's Gateway Mall before renovations forced a move to downtown Eugene. Massey says she's still getting used to the difference in foot traffic but she does like the downtown area. "Great people come in, and I'm learning a lot every day," she says. "I'm hoping to do a little bit more wholesale. I enjoy it down here. I love the people down here, and I love the area." ■

The Gluten Free Cart is open noon to 9 pm Friday and Saturday and noon to 6 pm Sunday at 255 W. Broadway, 912-5370, theglutenfreecart.com.

The Italian Stallion

Old-world charm meets West University Neighborhood
at Porcellino Bistro BY WILLIAM KENNEDY

The building at 1290 Patterson is among the West University Neighborhood's last remaining examples of early 20th-century architecture.

Prime for foot traffic, the building, a former coin laundry and tanning salon among other things, is located near the UO campus and PeaceHealth's university location. Only adding to the desirability of the address is a brand-new, five-story mixed retail and residential development right across the street.

So when a woefully underutilized space in the building recently came available, longtime friends Evan Woodward and Cody Verkler knew the time had come to realize their dream of opening a restaurant.

The pair decided on the theme of Italian food, and Porcellino Bistro was born.

"It's been going great," Woodward says. He also teaches culinary arts at Eugene's Network Charter School. "It's been busier than we'd thought. We haven't done any advertising. It's all been word of mouth."

Porcellino serves bistro food: pizza, panini, soups and salads, as well as Italian sodas, tea, coffee and beer (bottled and on tap).

"We want it to be more of a laidback atmosphere," Woodward says, explaining that he and his partner hope to cater to students, elevate the quality of food and keep the prices competitive.

"We knew that we didn't want it to be 'regular campus' — order at the counter," Woodward says. "So instead of serving everything in Styrofoam boxes to go, we serve everything on china," Woodward continues, adding that take-out orders are always welcome. "We want it to be casual, for students, but we want it to be nicer."

Central to Porcellino's atmosphere is a selection of board games, free wi-fi and homemade light fixtures that Woodward's girlfriend made from old Mason jars. "We have people come in here and study all the time," Woodward says. "We're totally open to that."

However, Woodward emphasizes Porcellino is not a students-only establishment. He says many Porcellino customers come from neighboring south Eugene and the hospital. "We don't want it to be a campus bar, where it's blaring music," Woodward says, "and we didn't want it to be quick service, grab the food and just go."

While Porcellino has vegetarian options, The Italian Stallion Panini is for the meat lover only. Woodward and Verkler buy meats from an importer of Italian foods in Portland, and their focaccia is specially made in Eugene at New Day Bakery, which doesn't make focaccia for anybody else, Woodward explains.

And The Italian Stallion lives up to its name — mixing exotic Italian cold cuts, capicola, mortadella, prosciutto, salami and pepperoni with fresh and flavorful greens and melted provolone. The panini is served with a fresh pepperoncini.

Although delicious, the size was intimidating even for this prodigious eater. Someone of a lighter appetite could split the panini at least twice. A Hop Venom IPA from Boneyard Beer washed it all down nicely.

In the warmer months, Woodward and Verkler plan to add gelato to their menu and expand the beer tap selection. In the fall, the partners will have Duck football games on the big screen. ■

Porcellino Bistro is open Monday through Saturday 11 am to 9 pm at 1290 Patterson St., 515-9890, wky.ws/1pj. Look out for expanded late-night hours coming soon.

Squeal Like a Pig Pecan Balls

FROM DELACATA

As you approach the Delacata food cart on the corner of 8th and Olive in downtown Eugene, you might hear squeals of delight emanating from customers trying these Squeal Like a Pig Pecan Balls for the first time. Delacata owners Stephen and Colleen Sheehan take pride in their Southern-fried food, and this new creation is off-the-charts good. "It's a homemade pecan pie that is made into balls and then rolled in pork skins and deep fried, and then topped with whipped cream," Colleen Sheehan says. "And it is good!" The pork skin doesn't make the pie taste porky; it just adds a delicious salty crunch.

How do they come up with stuff like this? "We lay awake at night in bed thinking of random things we can do," she says, "just putting a spin on things." When you have an imagination like that, along with a fryer that never stops, there's no limit to what you can do. The Sheehans are now ready to step outside of the food truck and enter the world of brick and mortar restaurants; they will be opening The Elk Horn restaurant, brewpub and cider house in the former Carl's Jr. site at 686 E. Broadway. Stephen Sheehan optimistically estimates Elk Horn will be open in May, while Colleen Sheehan's money is on June. When they do open, they will be Eugene's first dual-licensed pub making cider, beer and mead on premises. Their food cart will still be open while they make the transition.

PECAN PIE

1 cup sugar
1 1/2 cups corn syrup (the Sheehans use dark)
4 eggs
1/4 cup butter
1 1/2 tsp vanilla
1 1/2 cups pecans, coarsely broken
1 unbaked deep-dish pie shell

Boil sugar and corn syrup together for 2 to 3 minutes. Set aside to cool slightly. Beat eggs lightly and very slowly pour the syrup mixture into the eggs, stirring constantly. Strain the mixture. Stir in butter, vanilla and pecans and pour into crust. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 45 to 60 minutes.

PORK SKINS

Cut pork skins into 1-inch squares. Boil skins. Chill the skins at least four hours. Cut the fat from each skin. Place skins on drip tray skin side up. Put aluminum foil underneath in the oven. Render and dehydrate the skins — set oven to 170 degrees and leave the door cracked to circulate moisture out of the skins. Drop the skins in peanut oil for a few minutes, and then cool. Crush the pork skins.

Cut up the pecan pie and form into balls. Roll them in the crushed pork skins. Fry in peanut oil for two minutes. Serve with whipped cream.

Flourless Peanut Butter Chocolate Chip Cookies

FROM CRUMB TOGETHER

Deirdre Stirpe, who owns Crumb Together along with her husband, Tony Stirpe, has been cooking and baking since she was a wee girl. She went to culinary school in 2001 to learn more about the cooking profession, then entered the restaurant world. Perhaps we can thank Deirdre Stirpe's boss for firing her ("He didn't like me," she says), otherwise we might not have this great cookie, scone and muffin shop right in the heart of downtown.

After losing her job, Deirdre Stirpe supported herself by playing poker and blackjack, and taking batches of cookies with her wherever she went to play. "People were like, 'Can I buy a dozen of these?'" she recalls. "When that kept happening time after time after time, I said 'Hey, I need a store.'" The Stirpes relocated three years ago from Arizona, where they found the climate unsupportive of small local businesses. Eugene is just what they were looking for — a less conservative city with strong local values. "People here are really supportive of small mom-and-pop businesses," she says.

Deirdre Stirpe bakes up to 14 flavors of cookies, with about a dozen options available at any given time. In addition to the classics such as chocolate chip and oatmeal raisin, she has creative flavors like maple bacon and The Oregon Trail, which is flavored with chocolate chips, hazelnuts and marshmallows. She also makes fresh scones, granola bars, toffee, macaroons, biscotti, brownies and more. "Everything is made in-house," she says. And Stirpe shares the secret to great cookies: avoid over-mixing.

- 1 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 cup chunky peanut butter
- 1 egg
- 1 tsp baking soda
- 1 tsp vanilla
- 1 cup chocolate chips

Mix all the ingredients except the chocolate chips together in a bowl. Don't over-mix! Add in the chocolate chips. Mix just enough to distribute them evenly.

Scoop the cookies with an ice cream scoop and bake them on a sheet pan with parchment paper for 8 to 10 minutes at 350 degrees until browned. Turn the pan halfway through the baking if your oven cooks unevenly. Yield is approximately nine big 3-ounce cookies or a dozen slightly smaller treats.

Singapore Noodles

FROM TRUVEG

Crystal DuBoyce and her husband Brian Igarta opened up TruVeg inside the Eugene YMCA just three months ago. They are both from the island of Maui, Hawaii, where they met. As Hawaii is a melting pot of cultures, so is the couple. Igarta is of Portuguese, Puerto Rican, Hawaiian, Chinese and Filipino descent and DuBoyce is of Korean, Japanese, French and Irish descent. Igarta has worked professionally in Hawaii’s resort kitchens all of his adult life. While you will find many flavors and influences from around the world in his food at TruVeg, what you won’t find is dairy or other animal products.

The couple has been eating vegan for 12 years, and their 12-year-old daughter is a lifelong vegan. “When we became vegan in Hawaii, our friends and family would ask us, ‘What do you eat besides salads?’” DuBoyce says. They responded by creating a simple vegan cookbook. But they wanted to expand their reach, and eventually relocated to Douglas County, where they had a vegan food cart. “Eugene is more vegan friendly,” DuBoyce says. “We’ve been to a lot of restaurants throughout our travels and it’s only been a couple of years that we’ve seen the food we like to eat, which is really clean food.”

The couple chose this recipe for Singapore Noodles, made with mung bean noodles, sautéed vegetables and tofu in a mild-seasoned curry spice blend, because it is delicious and easy. “Anyone can make this,” DuBoyce says. The menu at TruVeg highlights two sizes of bowls featuring noodles and rice; nachos with beans and chipotle garlic cashew sauce; Korean Bi Bim Bap and even raw food options such as raw burger, taco and pizza. Lots of juices and smoothies will quench your thirst while snacks and desserts will leave you feeling satisfied and healthy.

Makes 8 servings

16 oz. package dried mung bean noodles
1 large carrot, peeled and julienned
1 medium onion, sliced
1 cup white mushrooms, sliced
1 cup spinach
3 green onions, chopped
1/4 cup wheat-free tamari
1 tbsp Frontier organic curry seasoning or your favorite curry spice blend
2 tbsp cooking oil

In a large pot, bring two quarts of water to a boil. Drop noodles into the boiling water, turn off heat and remove from stove. Allow the noodles to soak for several minutes then drain and set aside while preparing the sautéed vegetables.

Heat 1 tablespoon of oil in a wok, adding more oil as needed throughout the cooking process. Add the carrots and onion, stirring frequently for several minutes until crisp-tender. Add the mushrooms and sauté for another couple of minutes. Stir in the curry seasoning and cook for another minute. Last, toss in the spinach and noodles. Mix to combine ingredients well. Place in a serving bowl and drizzle on the tamari. Garnish with chopped greens and toasted sesame seeds, if desired.
